

What is going on here?

SAVI® – System for Analyzing Verbal Interaction

London 10 - 13 November 2020

SAVI is a practical, theory-based way of mapping communication patterns and having more productive and satisfying conversations at work and in our personal lives. It was created by Agazarian (the originator of Systems-Centered® Theory) and Simon.

Join us for two SAVI workshops over four days:

Introductory SAVI Workshop, 10 & 11 November 2020 facilitated by Rowena Davis.

Learn the nuts and bolts of SAVI for those new to SAVI and refresh and deepen SAVI skills for those who've taken this introductory workshop before. We will:

- Explore through the SAVI lens why some conversations flow & others get stuck
- Discover ways to reduce 'noise' so more information gets heard & communication problems are solved more easily
- Try out new verbal behaviours to build our teams, groups, relationships & organisations
- Aim to have fun co-creating an exploratory, collaborative learning climate

Applying SAVI at Work and in Life, 12 & 13 November 2020 facilitated by Rowena Davis & Mike Maher.

This workshop is for those with previous SAVI training. We will develop our SAVI muscle by:

- Role-playing participants' real-life examples to code the SAVI patterns
- Thinking SAVI theory to hypothesise what new verbal behaviours might shift stuck patterns
- Trying out new behaviours and seeing what happens
- Co-creating an exploratory, collaborative learning climate

Trainers:

Rowena Davis and Mike Maher are both certified SAVI trainers, experienced organisational consultants and licensed Systems-Centered® practitioners
